

Ann Coulter: 'Donald Trump was elected president tonight!'

Ann Hart Coulter is an American conservative social and political commentator, writer, syndicated columnist, and lawyer. She frequently appears on television, radio, and as a speaker at public and private events.

Ann Coulter took to Twitter on Friday night to respond to the Paris terror attacks, saying that "Donald Trump was elected president tonight."

The conservative commentator tweeted a series of reactions to the attacks that left more than 120 dead, calling for "no more Muslim immigration." She also targeted recent U.S. college student protests, as well as American gun and immigration laws and proposals.

Coulter ended her string of Tweets with: "They can wait if they like until next November for the actual balloting, but Donald Trump was elected president tonight."